Time Traveler Tours & Tales is dedicated to revolutionizing youth discovery of history and culture by bringing the very best in interactive creative nonfiction storytelling to the mobile and tablet formats for educational purposes.

Our first title suite, Beware Madame la Guillotine, is ready for your review with the exciting addition of a complementary Curriculum, perfect for use in history, social studies, English language arts, and dramatic arts classrooms.

Just as our debut StoryApp tour animates the streets of Paris for educational travelers, so the ALL NEW Beware Madame La Guillotine Curriculum Guide, by Marcie Colleen, energizes English Language Arts, History, Drama, and Social Studies curricula by bringing to life, within the classroom, Paris during the French Revolution.

The only travel necessary is through imagination and exploration.

Using engaging, hands-on techniques in concert with the Beware Madame La Guillotine interactive book, by Sarah Towle, Marcie's innovative drama-based Curriculum aids learning communities in creating a full sensory classroom experience through improvised dramas and discussions, while simultaneously stressing reading, writing, and research skills.

It also offers teachers across the disciplines an ideal opportunity for collaboration.

Marcie's Curriculum Handbook for Beware Madame La Guillotine emphasizes both teamwork as well as independent learning, using a variety of tools and technologies. It builds space for necessary reflection, empathy, and self-investigation, and motivates students to make cross-curricular connections.

The Beware Madame la Guillotine Curriculum Guide is aligned with various national learning standards, including the US Common Core, as well as the IBO Middle Years Programme. Its exciting, interdisciplinary approach targets all learning styles and approaches. Language and activity rich, it enables students to experience personally a seminal moment in human history, thereby providing learners with a deeper connection to narrative content, as well as a more profound insight into the human condition.

We hope your students, and you, will have fun traveling back through time with our complementary interactive book and Curriculum to the French Revolution.

And this is only the first!
